GOD IN THE CONSTITUTION.

MR EDITOR:

Every one who reads the newspapers is aware that for some months past a discussion has been going on in reference to so amending the constitution as to make some acknoledgement or the existence of Almighty God and our dependence upon him as a nation, and that the discussion finally culminated in a convention at Cincinnati, on the 31st ult. I am not about to enter into any discussion of the subject, or to say much in regard to it, probably should have said nothing at all, had not my eye fallen on the following article which I found in the Cincinnati Commercial of the 3d inst. Elder Isaac Errett, from whose gifted pen the article emanates, is well known to many in this community, and where he is known commands unqualified respect for his integrity, learning and Christian character. The 'over good' folks who are so desirous of changing the organized law, and making it recognize the puritanical Messiahship of Jesus' will do well to read Elder Errett's well considered views. Please give them place in your columns.

When Elder Errett says in reference to the parties getting up this movement 'we do not doubt their purity of motive,' he goes quite as far as 'the unity of Christian charity' ought to go. For my part I believe it to be but a stepping stone to a greater demand upon the government which greater demand will be the recognition of some particular mode of faith and worship. We are running rapidly toward the close of the ninth decennial period, since the adoption of the constitution and but for

'Slavery, the hell born Cyclops,
Fellist of the giant brood,'

We should have had uninterrupted prosperity, and having driven slavery out of the constitution let us keep bigotry out also. SIGMA

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER'S VIEWS.

A national convention is to meet in this city, in Thoms' Hall, on Wednesday, January 31, in favor of such an amendment of the constitution of the United States as will recognize the obligation of the nation to 'acknowledge God as the author of its existence and the source of authority, Jesus Christ as its ruler, and the Bible as the foundation of its conduct.' In other words—using still the language of those who send out the circulars—they seek an amendment avowing 'the political Messiahship of Jesus.'

Several names of gentlemen eminent in politics and in official position appear in the call and it is known that many names eminent in literature and theology are enlisted in this effort. They are evidently in earnest, but we doubt the wisdom of the measure they advocate. We speak as a devout believer in the Divinity and Lordship of Jesus the Christ, when we say that we hope not to see the proposed amendment adopted. The 'Political Messiahship of Jesus' would have been a popular doctrine during the personal ministry of Jesus. It was because he would have nothing to do with such a doctrine that the leaders of the people turned against him. The people were so much in favor of it at one time that they sought to take him by force and make him a King—but he escaped out of their hands; we hope he will escape this time also. 'My kingdom is not of this world; if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews; but now is my kingdom not from hence,' are words of grave import uttered under very significant circumstances, and must be regarded not only as a repudiation of all design to interfere with the authority of Cæsar, but as the avowal of a design to preserve his kingdom free from all associations with political governments that wield the power of the sword. If Jesus has a 'political Messiahship,'- then his servants may fight for him against whatever foe seeks to dishonor or injure him. 'Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and unto God the things which are God's,' is language which not only foiled the attempt of crafty men to ensnare him in political strifes, but also clearly avows a doctrine at war with the 'political Messiahship of Jesus.'

Because a nation is the creature of God,' and is clothed with authority derived from God,' and because 'Jesus Christ is the appointed rulers.' it does not follow that a nation is bound to acknowledge Jesus Christ as a ruler, and the Bible as the foundation of its laws and the supreme rule of its conduct;' for it was concerning the idolatrous Roman government that Paul said: 'The powers that be are ordained of God,' and concerning utterly Christless magistrates that he declared 'They are the ministers of God to thee for good.' That Christianity was designed to change the spirit and character of governments and the very genius of political institutions as existing when it made its appearance, there is no doubt. But this was to be done by a leavening progress, quietly revolutionizing the opinions and feelings of men and infusing new ideas and principles, not by forcing Christ and his laws on the people by legislative enactments or by constitutional provisions. God and Christ, on paper or on patchment, in the shape of constitutional acknowledgment, will not regenerate the world What we want is Christ in the hearts and lives of the people—and this depends on the true work of the church not on the mouthings of politicians—a work which, under our present constitution, we are at entire liberty to accomplish. All who desire to honor and serve our Lord Jesus Christ are at full liberty to do so. More than this: the public sentiment of this land being decidedly Christian, the Government respects and honors and reflects this sentiment as the voice of a great majority of the people, and Christian principles and ideas inject themselves into the legislation of the country and that without the aid of constitutional amendments such as now proposed. But while this is true, it is also true that the rights of such as are not Christians are respected and guarded—rights which such a constitutional amendment would at once invade. We are opposed to the amendment for several reasons.

1. The sword is in the hands of the civil government It is rightfully there for wise purposes. The ends of civil government require force for the punishment of evil doers and for the maintenance of peace and order. But the Bible and the Christ require not the advocacy of the sword and they would be dishonored by incorporation into a Constitution which rests on the sword for its maintenance

2. Roman Catholic, Jews, Spiritualists, rationalists, and all others who do not acknowledge Jesus Christ, and to whom the Bible is not a rule of conduct, would no longer be entitled to to citizenship under the constitution. They would at least be compeled to acknowledge what is to them a lie, in swearing to support and defend such a constitution, and thus the Bible and the Christ would be perpetually mocked by a hypocritical allegiance or by political resistance.

3 There is not agreement among the people of this country as to what the Bible is The Roman Catholic Bible is not the Protestant Bible. Which is to be the constitutional Bible? And how, in the name or reason, are the discordant peoples of this land to be one in the interpretation of the Bible for political purposes, when these pious theologians who seek this amendment can not themselves agree as to its religious teachings? Rely on it, their creeds and parties are a greater dishonor to the Bible and the Christ than our Godless and Christless constitution.

4 God and Christ and the Bible in the constitution would be at the mercy of politicians, and all the wrongs and crimes and corruptions that may attach to the government may also attach to Christ as the 'political Messiah' and the constitutional ruler of the nation.

5. European governments, with all the religious recognition, aye, and more that are sought for here, have not honored Christ by the recognition, but have greatly dishonored him. It has not helped forward the religion of Jesus to be under the patronage of governments, nor has Christ, in such associations, been enabled to help the people.

6. The spirit of the age renders such an amendment impracticable. Our history from early colonial times shows that we have been constantly outgrowing the old ideas of church and state, and dropping one by one, the religious tests once regarded as indispensable This tendency cannot be arrested. It is only to present Christianity in an unanimable and offensive light before the people, when it is made to seek the sanction of constitutional enactment, and to force its claims by law upon the people. All that Christianity has to ask of the state is what Diogenes in his tub asked of Alexander the Great when he wished to know what favor he could bestow on him: 'Get ye out of my sunshine,' said the cynic. In no evil spirit, certainly, but with a full persuasion that it is the best thing the state can do for the church, we ask that it shall let Christianity and the Bible alone so far as the constitution is concerned.

We recommend to the gentlemen engaged in this work the following paragraph from Mr. Mulford: 'The discussion as to the formal recognition of God in the written or enacted constitution has scarcely a better ground than a mere political dogma, as a saving power. In the historical or providential—the real and unwritten constitution—it is the very condition of the being of the nation. But the written or enacted constitution defines only the formal organizations and then also it is an instrument of law, and subject to amendment, &c., and the divine recognition might be required with the same propriety in every legislative enactment.

The Boston Times alludes to the members of the Massachusetts general assembly as 'very grave looking men, with awful dignity stamped on their port, and carfully large rubbers on their feet.

Peter Cooper, one of the excellent and wealthy men of the city of New York, has the credit on reliable authority, that of Wm. H. Browne, who has published a work on the subject, of constructing the first locomotive that was ever built in this country. This first experiment in this branch of manufacture was built in 1830, at Baltimore, and it was a comparatively small affair, when we see the ponderous machines of that class now, in almost every part of the country. This locomotive as near as can be judged, was about a one horse power, and it and the first car with twenty-four persons made a weight of about four and a half tons. It successfully carried its first load thirteen miles in some fifty seven minutes. This was an experiment in some respects, as the English locomotives, which had been imported to this country were not adapted to turning curves, whereas the machine made by Peter Cooper was capable of and did pass curves of more than 400 feet radius. The boiler of this first engine is said to have been less than many of the boilers now attached to cook stoves in our kitchens, and is now in use at a colliery in Carbondale, Pa. The entire machine was a very complicated piece of work.

Mr. Cooper has for many years been one of the most benevolent and enterprising men of our times, and the public know little of his success as a mechanic more than forty years ago.

The first English locomotive, according to Mr. Browne, was purchased by David Allen, and its first trial was at Honesdale, N. Y., in August, 1829. It was too heavy for the track and proved a failure, so was taken off and never used afterward.

Locomotives now traverse the country we may say by thousands, all of home manufacture, and are an indispensable element of national prosperity.

The following is from the pen of W. H. H. Murray of Boston, who draws crowds to hear him. Sometimes he has been charged with so called liberal views. The following extract will show what he thinks of this misused word, liberal.

"But, because bigoted and illiberal men can be found in the orthodox churches, it does not follow that they are exclusively found in them, nor in any greater proportion than in any other organizations. This whole matter depends a great deal on what definition you give to bigotry. If to believe any truth with one's whole soul is to be a bigot, then most orthodox Christians are indeed bigots, and their creed is a confirmation of intense bigotry; for we most heartily believe what we advocate. And I notice that this is the definition which many give to the term. How false it is you all know. Intelligent espousal of, is not an unreasonable adherance, to a cause. Belief in a truth is not blind advocacy. Faith is not credulity. On the other hand, you have doubtless observed that a new definition is given now-a days to liberalism. To be a liberal in certain circles, you must have no fixed belief in anything yourself, nor admit that any intelligent person can have. You must assume that the oracles of knowledge have been surrendered by the gods to you and a few others, and that the rest of the world are incapable of correct criticism and accurate judgment. You must satirize whatever is most sacred and conservative in men's belief, laugh at all conclusions the world reached prior to 1840 and denounce as orthodox bigots such as may think differently than yourself And a strange thing have I seen and noted since coming to this city. I have seen a liberalism superlatively narrow minded, and those who denounced denunciation dealing in it the most. Protesting against the shooting of arrows at brethren as barbarous and illiberal, the strings of their own bows are ceaselessly vibrant with the rapidity of their shots.

No! true liberalism does not find advocates and exemplars among those who now loudly appropriate this title. Back of all true liberality is a positive conviction; a sharply drawn line to deflect from in order to make the deflection worth any thing as a test of temper and charity. A man who yields does not yield at all unless there is in him a strong motive not to yield; and the value of the courtesy is graduated solely by the effort it cost to grant it. And those theological and metaphysical jugglers who meet to practice slight of hand, and toss the problems of life and destiny as players do a ball, for their own amusement: who yield without giving up anything; who say, 'See, we grant you all for the sake of free opinion,'—when, in point of fact, they never had any downright, well settled opinion,—are not liberals, they are intellectual shufflers, caring no more for the theories they advance than gamblers do for the pieces of pasteboard that they shuffle so nimbly. A man who does not care what he thinks, or what his boy thinks, or what views society adopts for its guidance, cannot be a liberal; but he who does care, both for his own safety and the safety of others, what opinions prevail, who is intensely interested and wrought upon by what he regards as evil instruction, and yet who treats with courtesy and listens patiently to him who promulgates what he considers as error, is the true and the only real liberal. If this eminently just distinction should be kept in mind, how many a head would be stripped of its stolen plumes, and how many another would be crowned with an enduring wreath!

HISTORY OF WRITING.

On the coasts of the Red Sea, and afterwards on the coasts of the Mediterranean Sea, opposite the island of Cyprus, in a district surrounded by mountains, and scarcely one thousand miles in extent, there lived a remarkable people—the Phœnecians.

In very ancient times—perhaps two thousand years before Christ—they were celebrated as a commercial people; to them, also, many useful discoveries and inventions are ascribed; but the most important gift that they gave, was the art of writing, which is supposed to have been invented by one of their number, named Taaut (called by the Egyptians, Thot), eighteen or nineteen hundred years after the creation of the world.

Before this art was known, various troublesome and inadequate means were employed to preserve the remembrance of events or other notable occurrances. Parents made past and current events part of the education of their children, but the means employed for that purpose were such that it was easily forgotten or perverted. These events were introduced into song, committed to memory, and from time to time publicly recited Pictures were employed in order to give the thoughts and words a form and shape; these representations were gradually curtailed; arbitrary signs were added, and a single figure used to represent several things. All this carried great disadvantages with it, especially as such picture writing had numerous signs, and some ambiguous meaning. At length in writing with letters, a small number of signs were found, which along with the sounds that are produced on reading them, are closely related to one another, and express, not things, but merely words, these however, being put together in different combinations, made all things to be comprehended by the mind through the eye.

The art of writing probably descended from the Phenicians to the Assyrians, Israelites, and Egyptians; these nations shared it with the Greeks and Romans, who communicated it to the rest of Europe.

In the earliest times, men wrote up on stone, lead, wood, palm leaves, bark, cloth, and the skin and intestines of animals; ivory and shells were also used for this purpose. At length the Egyptians introduced paper, which they made from the plant papyrus, found on the banks of the Nile; and finally our linen and cotton papers were introduced. The instruments used in writing changed according to the nature of the material written upon. As long as the writing materials were hard, the style was employed, which, in ancient times was made of iron, afterwards of bone. Men wrote on the Egyptian paper with the reed, which was cut nearly as our pens are. Goose quils were not probably used before the invention of linen paper.

The ink used for writing on paper was prepared from soot, which gave the letters a yellow appearance. Subsequently a very thick ink was prepared from tartar, charcoal and vitriol. Straight lines were drawn with a rule and pencil made of lead. Titles were frequently written in cinnibar; the lines were divided with vermillion or other red colors; hence the ancient derivations or the appellations paragraph and rubric.

Sacred and other standard works of import were written in gold and silver, which was the most beautiful and costly mode of writing known to the ancients At first either no marks or punctuation were used, or a point like our period was placed at the end of every word, and the words were all joined together as one; hence it was difficult to understand a book, and this was the cause of the many mistakes that were made by copyists. Under the reign of the Egyptian king, Ptolemy Epiphanes, several marks of punctuation were said to have been used In the time of the Apostles a point was placed at the end of the word and at the top of the line, in the center, or at the bottom. The first was equal to our period, the second to our colon, and the last to our semi colon or comma. But this was useful only to the learned. At length, as many words were written together in one line as were necessary to from an intelligible sentence, or a blank space was left, or period was made when the sense changed. Charles the great, Emperor of Germany, who flourished in the eighth century, contributed very much to the introduction of our present marks of punctuation.

UNION REPUBLICAN PARTY—OFFICIAL CALL FOR A CONVENTION.

The undersigned constituting the National Committee, designated by the Convention held at Chicago on the 20th of may, 1868, hereby call a convention of the Union Republican party at the city of Philadelphia, on Wednesday, the 5th of June next, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of President and Vice Presidedt of the United States.

Each state is authorized to be represented in the convention by delegates equal to twice the number of Senators and representatives to which it will be entitled in the next national congress, and each organized territory, is authorized to send two delegates.

In calling this convention the committee remind the country that the promises of the union national convention of 1868 have been fulfilled. The States lately in rebellion have been restored to their former relations to the government. The laws of the country have been faithfully executed, public faith has been preserved, and the national credit firmly established. Governmental economy has been illustrated by the reduction, at the same time, of the public debt and of taxation, and the funding of the national debt at a lower rate of interest has been successfully inaugurated. The rights of naturalized citizens have been protected by treaties, and immigration encouraged by liberal provisions. The defenders of the union have been gratefully remembered, and the rights and interests of labor recognized. Laws have been enacted, and are being enforced, for the protection of persons and property in all sections. Equal suffrage has been engrafted on the national constitution; the privileges and immunities of American citizenship have become a part of the original law, and a liberal policy has been adopted toward all who engage in the rebellion. Complications in foreign relations have been adjusted in the interests of peace throughout the world, while the national honor has been maintained. Corruption has been exposed and punished, responsibility enforced, safeguards established, and now, as heretofore, the republican party stands pledged to correct all abuses, and carry out all reforms necessary to maintain the purity and efficiency of the public service. To continue and firmly establish its fundamental principles, we invite the co-operation of all the citizens of the United States.

WM. CLAFLIN, of Massachusetts,
Chairman.

INGENIOUS SPY.

It was customary with Marshal Bassompier when any of his soldiers were brought before him for heinous offences, to say to them, 'Brother, you or I will certainly be hanged,' which was a sufficient announcement of their fate. A spy who was discovered in his camp, was addressed in this language; and next day as the wretch was about to be led to the gallows, he pressed earnestly to speak with the marshal, alleging that he had something of importance to communicate.

The marshal being made acquainted with this request said in his rough manner, 'It is always the way of these rascals, they pretend some frivolous story, merely to reprieve themselves for a few moments; however, bring the dog hither.' Being introduced, the marshal asked him what he had to say?

'Why, my lord,' said the culprit, when I first had the honor of your conversation, you were pleased to say, that you or I should be hanged; now I come to know whether it is your pleasure to be so, because, if you won't, I must; that's all.' The marshal was so pleased with the fellow's humor, that he ordered him to be set at liberty.

A correspondent writes the following to the Tribune: 'Six years ago I married in Europe. I then possessed two suits of clothes, valued at ten pounds ($50) and 5 pounds in cash. My wife's fortune consisted of robust health and ten pounds in money. We lived in a cottage rented at four pounds a year, and by industry and frugality saved sufficient in one year to defray our passage to this city, where I entered a counting house at a salary of $450 a year. My second year's income was $700, my third $1,000, and quite recently my employer raised my salary to $1,200. We have now in bank $1,300. During this time we have rarely visited the theatre or opera, but contented ourselves at home, which consists of three snug rooms in a house in the suburbs of Brooklyn, at a rate of $12 per month, and I find we are just as comfortable there as if we dwelt in a stone front In 1865 I was worth $156,000 cash, but an unfortunate speculation in ship property ruined me. I now am commencing life again, and with God's help and my wife's, I expect to reach my former worldly prosperity. Young men, don't be ashamed of poverty. Do not let it prevent your marrying.

FROZEN PLANTS.

Let them remain where they were frozen; close the window shutters or drop the curtains, so as to make the room quite dark; then sprinkle the plants with cold water from the cistern, and wait the result. Do not allow the room to become warmer than forty seven degrees for twenty four hours. If a few drops of spirits of camphor are thrown into the dish of water before sprinkling, it will be all the better. Plants treated in this way, though froze so badly that the water will freeze on when sprinkled yet by keeping the room dark and cool for an entire day, they will come out unharmed.

Massillon, Wednesday, Febru y 14

THE OLD FLAG during the four nights of last week, beginning on that of Wednesday was a most popular ins itution in our community. It drew together increasing crowds of visitors, and every evening augmented the number of admirers. The general object of the drama is the same as that of the popular Union Spy, of which our citizens seemed never to tire; that is, it appeals to the patriotism of our people, and challenges their admiration for the devotion of all truly loyal classes to that emblem, our national flag. Those who conducted the presentation of this new production were principally young ladies and gentlemen of this place, and for their brief experience on the stage did themselves admirable credit for their skill in personating the different characters required to carry out the programme. There is no knowing what we can do until we are tried; so it was in this case. A large portion of those who appeared on the stage last week had not previous experience in that way, and they did admirably, while others who had been there, seemed to improve in adapting themselves to the exigencies required. Critics, or those who deem themselves such, of histrionic performances might be able to find much to censure among our actors and actresses, but to the mass of our people it was all about right—we took the intention to be praiseworthy, and any little seeming failure was not regarded as a blemish, but rather as incidents inseparable from beginners in any art, especially those of which the public are to judge. It is no easy task for ladies and gentlemen who are pursuing a great variety of occupations and professions, to so direct their energies as to seemingly forget everything else but the business immediately on hand, but this company did so. In the characters thus represented a stranger would not guess that mechanics and working men and women of various occupations were the heroes and heroines, who represented many of the phases of life in a state of war—but here we saw it was done, and that with such a degree of success as to elicit the praise of all. This effort will contribute, financially, to aid in the erection of a monument to the memory of our fallen heroes, an object for which the Hart Post has so persistently labored, and which they will not relinquish until their aim is accomplished. The entertainments they have given are for this sole purpose, and a large portion of our citizens have been liberal in contributing to this end, in the way of patronizing these exhibitions.

The memorable political campaign of 1840, which probably was one of the most exciting that the country had ever witnessed before, was marked in some respects by incidents which are not yet forgotten by those who participated in them, although almost one third of a century has passed away since their introduction to the public. While the whigs had their emblems often in the shape of coons, log cabins, cider barrels, buckeye canes and such, the democrats then adopted one, we may say almost by accident, which they have been using ever since when the party secured a victory, and that emblem is the rooster. Without attempting to detail the particulars as to how or rather why this bird was adopted as the party signal it may suffice to say that somewhere out in Indiana the democrats had an editor by the name of Chapman; and as things were beginning to wear a squally aspect for that party, a leader among them in order to inspire energy and enthusiasm, wrote to another prominent politician where this man was editing a paper, and in his suggestions used the memorable words, "Tell Chapman to crow." Well, Chapman did crow to the best of his abilities, and the idea indicated by this well known phrase, suggested that the picture of the rooster should be used as the rallying token of the party. Accordingly paper of that political faith was embellished with the pictures of crowing chickens; but somehow the bird was not game that time, for Tippecanoe and Tyler too beat little Van so badly that he received but half a dozen electoral votes, while Gen. Harrison got all the rest. In the election of 1844 the democrats elected Polk, in 1852 they chose Pierce, and in 1856 Buchanan was made president by the same party. Of course their roosters crowed valiantly on these occasions, but when 1860 came it seemed as though the glory of Judah had departed, and ever since that time, nearly twelve years, the crowing of Chapman has ceased to reverberate, and it does seem as if

> The bird that used to boost
> The party up, has gone to his everlasting roost.

When the rallying cry of the southern leaders was secession then Chapman's occupation was gone.

Archbishop Spalding, one of the primates of the Catholic church in this country, died at his residence at Baltimore, on the 9th inst., at an advanced age. So highly was he esteemed by the prominent men of that religious order that the pope and others in authority had decided, it is said, on conferring upon this archbishop the title of cardinal. His death has occasioned a deep sensation in the church of which he was so conspicuous a member, and his hosts of friends are paying tribute to the memory of one whom they regarded as a beacon light in matters of religious faith and practice.

Harper's Magazine for February as it is ever found, is rich in its great abundance of useful literature, such as the public everywhere are familiar with, and nothing we can say will add to its glory or renown. At the news dealers have it for sale, an assurance that its popularity is not located in a small corner but is world wide. Harpers may say—

A railroad meeting was held at Canton last Wednesday in behalf of the project to connect Cleveland with the Pan Handle road by way of Akron, Canton and Carrollton. The papers of that place and of Cleveland represent the feeling in favor of the road as up to fever heat, and talk as if they meant business. Especially are our Canton neighbors exercised on the subject, and they talk railroad in good earnest. The right sort of talking often leads to action—how it may result in this case time will tell.

MEETING OF THE N E. O. MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Northeastern Ohio Medical Association was held in the rooms of the Y M C A in this city, on Tuesday. The attendance was quite large, about twenty five members being present.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Dr Sherman, of Kent; Vice President, Dr Lyman, of Wadsworth, Rec. Secretary, Dr Efright, of Akron; Cor Secretary, Dr Smith, of Akron, Treasurer, Dr Smith, of Middlebury.

The officers elect then assumed their respective seats, and the president appointed the following standing committees: On admissions, Drs McEfright, Howard and Morrison, on Ethics, Jewett, Bowen and Lyman, on Finance, Sawyer, Eberhard and Ridenour. The association then adjourned for dinner at the Empire house, provided by the members of the Summit County Medical Society.

At one o'clock the association again convened, when the essayist, Dr Hudson, was called upon and read a paper on Cerebro-spinal Meningitis, which called out a general discussion. Dr Chase then delivered a somewhat lengthy lecture on Hard Cancer, or Scirrus, which was followed by remarks from Drs Smith and Bowen. Dr Ridenour, of Massillon was appointed lecturer for the next meeting—subject, New Remedies—and Dr Eberhard of Wadsworth, alternate. Dr Chandler, of Akron was appointed essayist, with Dr Foltz as alternate.

Resolutions of thanks were then extended to the Y M C A, for the use of their rooms, and to the Summit County Medical Society for the splendid dinner provided, after which the association adjourned to hold its next meeting, three months hence, in the Y M C A rooms in this city.—Akron Beacon.

In Carroll county, Wm. McDowell and James Steen, charged with burglary and theft, were found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary. Steen is a married man, but unfortunately was a drunkard, and in consequence of this evil habit he aided in perpetrating a crime which brought him to the state prison. His wife has commenced a prosecution for damages against the liquor sellers of Carrollton for being the cause of this trouble, and that she will be entitled to and receive exemplary damages, if the law is properly enforced, there is no doubt. We hope the friends of right and justice in that place will see that the law is rigorously enforced in this case.

At Millersburg, Holmes county, Mrs Woods has received damages to the amount of $1600 from the grogsellers of that place for selling liquor to her husband. That amount is some compensation to a woman, though her loss from this cause may be much greater.

That is the way the grogsellers are catching it in many places. The same laws prevail here, and if the widow of George Hofacker, of this place, who was bereaved by liquor were to have justice she too would receive heavy damages. It is not too late and somebody may yet undertake and carry through this much needed work. Justice as well as humanity requires that this case be prosecuted.

A NEW LAW QUESTION.

A case involving a question of considerable importance as to dower rights has been lately decided by the Illinois supreme court.

Many years ago one Margaret Donahoe applied to the court for an assignment of dower in a lot on State street near Monroe, owned by the city of Chicago. The lot, 25 feet, was incapable of being divided so as to set off one third to her by metes and bounds, and under the statute of this state, the value of her dower was asserted by a jury at $75 per annum. This lot was then worth but $100 per foot, but with the growth of the city it increased in value to $1 500 or $2,000 per foot; thereupon Mrs. Donahoe filed her bill in chancery in the Supreme court, asking for a reassignment of dower based upon the increased value. The Supreme court, some years ago held a dower case (Grove vs Cather, 23 Ill.), that, "If in progress to time the income from the property becomes materially depreciated or materially enhanced, equity will afford the requisite relief to either party on filing a proper bill;" but it was contended by the city that this point was what is called 'obiter,' and unnecessary to the decision of that case. The case was heard by judge Jameson, but upon what grounds is not known, as no copy of the decision has yet reached us. The case is said to be the first in the United States where this question has been directly presented, and has attracted considerable attention among lawyers.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The house naval committee agreed to day to report a bill authorizing the secretary of the navy to construct ten steam sloops of war.

The senate finance committee heard Mr. Hayes of Boston on the question of retaining the present duty on wool and woolens. He submitted to the committee a large amount of information on the condition of the woolen manufacturers, and of their ability to continue successfully provided there is no interference with the tariff.

The finance directed Mr. Sherman to report the bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to redeem three millions per month of three per cent certificates. The bill authorizes the secretary to give public notice of the order in which they will be redeemed.

The whisky men were before the ways and means committee to day, and asked for a consolidation of the tax on spirits, and its collection at the distillery.

Col Bondonot, a leading Cherokee, was before the house territorial committee to day, urging the organization of a territorial government for the Indian Territory.

The postmaster general was before the house postal committee explaining allegations about straw bids for contracts. It is understood that he satisfied the committee and vindicated the department against charges made by interested parties, and that the report will fully exonorate him.

Mr. Edmonds offered a resolution to day, calling upon the president for whatever information he may have relative to the rumored repudiation by Great Britain of the treaty of Washington.

Messrs. Trumbull, Cameron and others hoped the resolution would not be acted upon till the contents of the Queen's speech from the throne at the opening of parliment was received. Gen Cameron, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, stated that so far as he knew, neither the president nor the secretary of state had any information relative to the rumored withdrawal of England from the Geneva conference. The resolution went over and the amnesty bill was taken up.

While the baser sort of newspapers and politicians in England and America continue to breathe forth threatenings and slaughter, the more judicious hold fast to the policy of discretion and expectation. The indications from Washington are that our government will indulge in no retorts or recriminations, but will stand firmly in the position it has taken, leaving to England the grave responsibility of withdrawing from the treaty if so disposed. It ought not to be forgotten that the question of interpretation is one which belongs to the Board of Arbitration; that we have committed no fraud in negotiating the treaty, and have been guilty of no impropriety in giving it the construction we intended when we adopted it; that having presented our case, it remains for the arbitrators, and not for the English press, nor even the English cabinet, to say whether our claims are excessive or not; that if the treaty stands, and the board of arbitration gives its award, we intend to accept it; and if Great Britain withdraws we shall be left in a better attitude than we occupied before the conference, while that of England will be much more difficult. In this state of affairs it is evident that any heroic bluster on our part is wholly unnecessary. Our position is so strong that it does not need to be fortified with words.—Tribune.

Salt Lake, Feb. 10.—The Japanese embassy had been preparing, on information of the progress of the trains west on the Union Pacific road, to leave for the east to morrow or next day; but the last intelligence from the road reports that a number of trains are again blockaded by snow more than three hundred miles east of here, with falling snow and storming winds, and are not likely to get out at once, and in consequence the embassy have given up packing their trunks, and are waiting for a more favorable turn of affairs.

They are now killing time by riding about the town, visiting the stores, shopping, collecting mineral specimens and viewing the scanty attractions of the town. The delay is not likely to promote the business prospects of the Union Pacific and overland routes, so far as oriental traffic is concerned. Milder winters or more snow sheds are essential to the successful operation of the Union Pacific for three months in the year. The Japanese will leave at the first opportunity, and will take their chances of getting through as soon as possible, being furnished with hotel cars and ample supplies.

Undoubtedly Canada would be the first to suffer if England should provoke America to war. So that the Pittsburg Commercial says: 'Considering for a moment such a thing possible, what would the government give for a ship canal from Erie to the Ohio river? What member of congress is statesman enough to grasp the subject in its real proportions and push the requisite appropriation through.

LATEST ABOUT DR. LIVINGSTONE.

In view of the renewed anxiety manifested concerning Dr. Livingstone and the fact that one or more expeditions are being fitted out to send in search of him, a brief statement of the exact position of affairs at the date of the latest authentic intelligence regarding him may be of interest. The latest letter received from Dr. Livingstone was dated May 30, 1869, from Ujiji, lake Tanganyika. In it he speaks of the unwillingness of the Arab traders to take charge of his letters to Zanzibar. He writes for fresh stores and men, and says that in the meantime he may explore the Manyena country and the lakes west of Tanganyika. June 1870, the British government granted $5,000 to supply fresh stores and men to Livingston—not by means of a relief expedition sent from England, but by parties of natives sent by the Consul from Zanzibar to the interior. One only of these native parties, with a portion of the stores, has succeeded in attaining a point within reach of Livingston at Manyena, but neither letters from Livingston nor proof of the stores having reached him have reached Zanzibar. The native in charge of the stores simply states that he received a letter from Livingston, dated October 15, 1870, which letter he has not transmitted to Zanzibar. It is doubted, therefore whether the traveler has been provided with the means either of continuing his explorations or returning to the coast; and it is probable he is detained against his will and in such a position from which only an expedition, such as is now proposed in England, headed by a resolute and competent European travler, can extricate him.

About to day valentines are prevalent—but they don't cause the excitement they used to, though the observance is not quite forgotten.

FOUTZ'S
CELEBRATED
Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly invigorate broken down and low spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine looking and spirited horse.

To Keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to the Wonderful Curative Effects of DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor, R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Ag'ts, San Francisco, Cal., and 32 and 34 Commerce st, N.Y.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erisipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores, cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

Will all those who Suffer from Consumption or Cough

Please read the following letter from a reliable druggist?

Mt Vernon, Ill., April 22, 1871.

Messrs. J N Harris & Cincinnati, O.

Gentlemen—I heard one of my customers speak highly terms of Allen's Lung Balsam the day, that I thought I would write his more substance of his statement. He says her, who is now sixty years of age, is afflicted with consumption for several years, and has been under the care of all our best physicians, but never received any permanent benefit, then she resorted to almost every kind of cough and lung balsam that could be procured for her, but all of no avail. She still grew worse, until she was confined to her bed; and when she was seized with a paroxysm of coughing she would lose the power of respiration, and they were compelled to resort to various means to restore breathing; and while she coughed so hard she could not expectorate anything and the family and friends had given up all hopes of her recovery. Her son noticed the advertisement of Allen's Lung Balsam in the Christian Advocate, and they thought they would procure and try it. They commenced giving her the balsam at 5 p m., as directed, a dose every hour until midnight; then she took another spell of coughing, and expectorated a mouthful of dark yellow matter, which was something she had not been able to do for some time. They continued to give her the balsam until morning and then she began to expectorate freely, and within three hours she had expectorated three pints of mucus matter, which gave her immediate relief, and since that time she has continued to improve. She now sits up all day, and can walk about the house and take considerable out-door exercise. Her son bought more of the balsam to-day, as he is recommending it very highly to every one. Yours, respectfully,

A C JOHNSON, Druggist,

A Beautiful woman. The perceptive faculty of woman is usually keener than the same phrenological organ in men. Women know that beauty rather than genius is worshipped by the sterner sex. A man may talk of the latter to his lady love, but the keenness of the woman knows that he is thinking of the former. d of admiration; hence one of their longings is to be beautiful. The grand secret of female beauty is health, the power to eat, digest and assimilate a proper quantity of wholesome food. Take Vinegar B It will cleanse the stomach, tone the vital organs, give a perfect digestion, purify the blood clear up the complexion and produce a state of mental and phisical electricity, which gives symmetry of form, bright eyes, white skin, glossy hair and a genuine type of female loveliness, which no cosmetic can produce. 4w

Dead or Dying.—Where the hair is unnaturally dry, you may be sure that it is dying and unless artificially vitalized, it will soon be as dead as leaves in November. Feed the withering fibers and stimulate the torpid scalp with Lyon's Kathairon, and the evil which must otherwise soon culminate in baldness, will be speedily remedied. It is absolutely necessary for the health of the brain, that it be kept moderately moist with a preparation capable of nourishing and invigorating it. Lyon's Kathairon fulfills these conditions, and is the only article that actually puts new life into the capillary tubes, through which the natural nourishment has ceased to pass. This pure and harmless vegetable preparation is absorbed by the skin of the head to the roots of the hair, and passes into the filaments by the force of capillary attraction.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Prof A. J. Ebell is to be here, and is expected to commence a course of scientific lecturers on the 26th inst. These lectures are entitled the Beauties and Marvels of Nature, illustarted with a screen microscope and stereopticon, by which a vast variety of objects are represented greatly enlarged on a screen. A large amount of information is embraced in this course, and we hope our citizens, especially the youth, will avail themselves this opportunity affords of attaining useful and practical knowledge on a variety of subjects. Prof E. comes highly recommended by the press where he has been, and the leading papers of the country are lavish in their encomiums in his his favor. Want of time and space prevent us us from giving such a deserved notice as the exhibition calls for, as we expect to refer to the proposed course next week, giving further particulars.

Part first, exhibition of the Planetelles. A new and remarkable invention, which represents, when put in motion, nearly eighty relative movements of the bodies belonging to the solar system.

This Instrument is the most wonderful combination of science and mechanism ever witnessed by the human eye. It has no rival as an artificial device, for imparting useful knowledge, and probably no equal as an object of curiosity.

Part second embraces telescopic and photographic views of lunar mountains, of lunar craters, of the moon and lunar phases, of lunor eclipses, of Saturn and his rings, of extraordinary comets, of solar eclipses, of solar spots, of solar Prominences, of Nebulae, of star clusters, also, views that illustrate the tides, and the transits of Mercury and Venus.

Part third embraces brilliant views of battle scenes, of cascades and cataracts, of rare landscape scenery, of noted edifices in Europe and America, of rare statuary, of portrait paintings, of flowers of brilliant colors; also, of many other rare objects belonging to both art and nature.

All of these views are interesting and instructive, and are rendered in the most brilliant manner by the use of superior apparatus

Prof. J. Davis, the inventor of the planetelles, will explain its wonderful movements, and the various views employed for illustration, as they are being presented.

Tickets, 35 cts., under 15years, 25 cts.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. Commence at 7 1-2 o'clock. Correspondents will address, Prof J Davis, Pittsburgh, Pa.

For the last ten years or so the young lady who lives down east as well as out west, is reported as having been reproved by her mother for smoking, and excusing herself by saying she wished to smell as if there had a man around, is said by a late paper to be an up town citizen of Massillon. Cant we have her name? Should like to know who she is. If she is not too modest to smoke, certainly she wont be scared at seeing her name in print.

Mr John Davis, of Pittsburgh, Pa. will exhibit his ingenious apparatus, called planetelles, in the M E church, on to morrow evening. It is represented as a very useful instrument for illustrating the movements of the heavenly bodies, and is well worthy the patronage of the public. Mr D. has spent over thirty years in the construction of this wonderful piece of mechanism, and has attained a perfection in its parts seldom if ever before achieved. All are invited to call and see it.

It has not been many years since that, as a rule, newspapers were very careful about saying anything particularly obnoxious to the wickedness of drunkard making. Now things are different. Scarce a paper can be found, no matter if a beer guzzler or a whisky bloat plays editor, but what very hearily denounces the traffic; and if a grogselling transgressor is caught in the meshes of the law and made to suffer both in pocket and person, as a penalty for his misdeeds, an almost unanimous shout is raised, among the newspapers—served him right. These numerous straws show which way the wind is blowing, and if a hurricane of prohibition is not soon to sweep over the land it will be something strange.

The leasing newsdealers of Cleveland are endeavoring to do a most commendable work, and that is, induce the city authorities to prevent the sale of obscene and reckless papers, such as emanate from some of the baser portions of New York city. The Police Gazette, Day's Doings and other similar publications are unfit for reading in a civilized community more especially by the young, and it is this class these dealers are trying to suppress in that market. In other cities this has been done, and no doubt with advantage to these communities, and the more such work is done the better. It is needed everywhere. A certain class however, as regularly buy the worst of these papers, for Sunday reading, as they go to market for provisions on that day. They are not good examples of society.

It is the Dilworth Coffee done up in pound packages, all ready for use. Those who are judges of the article—and they are legion—will not fail to give Mr. Mc a call, where they will find not only good coffee, but lots of other good things, indispensable about a well kept household, all which can be had on very reasonable terms. Remember the place—Opera building, north of the main entrance—where everything in the grocery line is to be had.

Quite a number of occupations and professions were well and ably represented on the stage last week, and without disparagment to any of the rest we may say that no less than three printers were the stars. Mr Lewis, (Charles Sanford) is a Vermont printer; C. E. Tayler (Capt. Holmes) for several years of this office, is a Massachusetts typo; and Corporal Jones (Mr. Anderson, now of Canton) did the Yankee admirably, for he is a native of Boston, the hub of the universe, and is now connected with the Rep and Rep. Pat Murphy (Mr. Cross) although not a printer was a grand success in his part, and those who anticipated fun when he appeared were not disappointed.

Among the characters necessary to give interest to the presentation of the Old Flag were several of the comic class. The Yankee was an object of close attention while before the audience, while Pat was well done by another gentleman, and the inevitable African played his part right well. While these amusing characters were so well done, other parts were marked, at least some of them, by superior ability, in delineating the moral, heroic, daring and enterprising features of the play

Court of common pleas for Stark county commenced its present session on last Monday. This vicinity furnishes its quota of business for that tribunal, and other places have done the same.

Those tableaux which were presented to the audience in the drama last week, were beautiful pieces of art, and well adapted to aid in giving vividness to to the ideas which the author of the play, Mr Lewis, designed to convey. Although their presentation is necessarily short they leave impressions which are not forgotten.

Notwithstanding the Golden Age, Mr Tilton's paper, is one of the best abused periodicals in the country, as is also the editor and proprietor, Mr T. himself, it is one of the most readable and fullest of well expressed ideas that we come across anywhere. Anyone used to reading this paper, will find on the first page of every issue a series of brief paragraphs which we may set down as an embodyment of criticism, in the shape of history, observation, general intelligence reformatory and many other characteristics under the comprehensive heading, Signs of the Times. Read this page and one is pretty well posted as to what is going on the moral world, and examine the other seven pages and there we find much more to interest us all, whether we agree with the writers or not.

On to-morrow evening our Canton neighbors are to be favored with a visit from that celebrated magic musician, Ole Bull, who has a world wide reputation for skill in the art of producing sweet sounds by the dexterous collision of pusses inards and long hairs of horses. A good fiddler is a magician, and of such is Ole Bull. But on the 29th Massillon is to have

Josh Billings, whose writings are very extensively known, and whose philosophy makes favorable impressions, especially when presented in his quaint way. His writings are largely read by all who appreciate wisdom so pleasantly expressed. We should like a visit from the great musician, but if we are restricted to Ole Bull or to Josh Billings, give us the latter for his sayings wont soon be forgotten, while the harmonies of the violin may be pleasant, and even entrancing, they soon die away, and are known no more forever.

Wherever we went about our streets we had ice to the right of us, ice to the left of us, ice in front of us, ice under us, and if we didnt take care the ice had some of us sprawling for being on it we stood on slippery places. Our plumbers are likely to have a busy time when the big thaw comes, and last Sunday looked like a fair beginning in that way.

At the enthusiastic R R meeting at Canton, the chairman, Mr Buchtel, said, the Mahoning R R was a local coal road—a road for the manufacturers. Now dont this road (the Akron and Canton) go through a richer mineral field than the Mahoning: and if they can pay 30 per cent on their investment cant we do as much? Will Mr John B Buchtel show us the field east of the Tuscarawas river, in Stark county and we will show you where Capt Kidd may have deposited his treasure. p

Mrs Mary James died, after a long illness on the 6th inst. aged nearly 75 years. She and her husband, who yet survives at the at the age of 76, were among the old and much respected citizens of this place. On Monday last the mail agent on the Cleveland and Massillon road met with a serious accident in having the two fore fingers of one of his hands crushed while assisting in arranging the cars. So much were these fingers mangled that it was found necessary to have them amputated. He has had bad luck in this respect, for the corresponding fingers on his other hand have been lost for some time in consequense of a previous accident.

Messrs. Lang & Dicky, proprietors of the Massillon Soap Works, are manufacturing large quantites of this indispensable article, which is evidence that the more it becomes known the better it is appreciated. They have no difficulty in disposing of their manufacture.

On last Wednesday evening Rev. G. F. Stelling, of Harrisburgh, Pa., greatly interested a full house, in the Presbyterian church, with his lecture, To Oregon and Back Again. So much in connection with this journey presented itself to the speaker that the subject seemed almost exhaustless, and many tempting points were merely glanced at, and as it was Mr. S. rivited the attention of his hearers for nearly two hours with a richness of information seldom attained in a single lecture. The speaker traveled with his eyes open, and saw and noted many things which the casual observer might overlook. His fine descriptive powers, and his skill in narrating what he saw, with other characteristics which go to make up a first class lecture, made this an occasion which will long be remembered here. This lecture tells the listener more about Oregon than can be learned from any other source, except a trip thither, and that every one is not prepared to accomplish.

A box of soap was stolen from the wagon of the proprietors of the Massillon Soap Works a few days ago, while at Navarre. Stealing soap is disreputable and punishable by law, but the fact that such a commodity was thus taken indicates that although the taker was a thief he wanted to be clean. We hope the perpetrator in this case will be made clean and known too and dealt with as the law directs.

An Ordinance

Directing all places where Intoxicating Liquors are sold, to be closed at nine o'clock at night, and to prevent the sale of such liquors after that hour.

Sec 1. Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Massillon, That all saloons, groceries, bars, eating houses, or other place or places, used or occupied in the city of Massillon, for the purpose of selling or giving away, or permitting to be sold, or exposed for sale, any intoxicating liquors, shall be closed at nine o'clock in the evening; and no person or persons shall keep any such saloon, grocery, bar, eating house, or any other place for such purpose, later in the evening than 9 o'clock.

Sec. 2. No person or persons, in said city, shall sell or give away, or expose for sale, or permit to be sold, any intoxicating liquor, later than nine o'clock in the evening.

Sec. 3 That in any prosecution under this ordinance, it shall not be necessary to aver or prove the particular kind of liquor sold or given away, or exposed for sale, but it shall be sufficient to avert and prove the same to have been intoxicating liquors.

Sec. 4. That any person violating the provisions of this ordinance, shall on conviction thereof, be fined not less than five, nor more than fifty dollars, and the cost of prosecution; and in default of the immediate payment of the fine and cost, to be committed to the city prison of said city, until said fine and costs are paid, or be otherwise discharged from said imprisonment, according to law.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force, from and after its passage and publication according to law.

Sinking Slowly.

Diseases that progress rapidly so a crisis are not the only ones to be dreaded. Cancker or dry rot does not blast a tree as suddenly as a stroke of lightning, but unless arrested it destroys it as certainly; and in like manner chronic disease, although it does not kill with the swiftness of yellow fever, is as sure to sap the springs of life by invigorating medication. There is something inexpressibly touching in the spectacle of premature decay. Languor pallor, emaciation, depression of spirits, and a distaste for exertion, are its ordinary symptoms, and they should be promptly met by tonic treatment. The best invigorant and exhilerant that can be administered in a case of this kind is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The stimulating principle of the preparation rouses the dormant energies of the system, and the strengthening and regulating properties give a permanent and healthful impulse to the vital forces thus brought into play. The failing appetite is re-awakened, the quality of the blood is improved, the secretions became more natural, and every organ that contributes to the nourishment of the body undergoes salutary change. By these means the repair of the physical structure is effected and its health and vigor restored. In no class of diseases has the deficient operation of the Bitters been more marked and striking than in those characterized by general debility and nervous prostration. Ladies affected with these ailments find in this most wholesome of all tonics and correctives the safest and surest means of relief. It is strong to restore and powerless to injure. Such is the testimony of "clouds of witnesses." 119—4w

Water may drown the body, but wine cannot drown sorrows. There are ghosts which will not drown at the bidding of wine.

Oregon housewives are said to define soda to be that 'ere stuff which you put in biscuits to make them get up and hump themselves.

'How did you learn that graceful a trundle?' said a gentleman to a fellow leaning in a mandlin fashion against a post. 'I have been practicing at the glass,' was the reply.

A sect by the name of Soul Sleepers is said to be making progress in southwestern Virginia. It teaches the annihilation of the wicked, and the sleep of the religious until the great judgment day.

'Mamma,' said a little girl, 'what's the meaning of a book being printed in 12mo?' Why, my dear,' replied the mother, 'it means that the book will be published in twelve months.' Fact.

The ceiling of the new Paris Opera house will be made of copper plates, capable of being at any time disjointed. The roofing will be movable, so as to regulate the height of the theatre at pleasure.

A Huntington (Ct) man being unexpectedly called upon to address a Sunday School, rose to his feet, and after several desperate but vain efforts to say something appropriate, hoarsely muttered, 'Dear children, never fool with powder.

'George,' asked the teacher of a Sunday school class, 'who, above all others, shall you you wish to see you when you get to heaven?' With a brightening up with anticipation, the fellow shouted 'Gerlfab!'

A Georgia colored lyceum discussed the question, 'Which is the most useful, paper or gunpowder?' The debate was closed by a disputant who spoke as follows: 'Mr President—Spose dar was a bar at the door, and you was to go dar and shake a paper at him, you'd see what de bar would do. But jest shoot a cannon at him and mark de resu't. I calls for de question.'

On Thursdry a fine Newfoundland dog walked into the school house on Poplar street, Boston, entering one of the dressing rooms of the pupils, took down the hat and coat of his young master, and then gave an inquiring look at the children, among whom he failed to see the owner of the hat and coat. Walking into another room on the same floor he found the object of his search, and went up and affectionately kissed him. This is a true story, says the Boston Herald.

G. W. Curtis says, with much truth: 'The council of the world to the young man is, 'My son believe that every body is selfish and wishes to get the better of you.' Now a man could as reasonably live upon a diet of chock cheries and expect to be morally fresh and sound. Men are very much what you make them, that is to say, what you expect them to be. If you expect a man to be mean, he will probably seem to you to be so. For, however generous he may be, through your mask of mean expectation, you cannot discover it. Believe me, there is something very much worse than being cheated, and that is the feeling that everybody wants to cheat you. And, if you observe closely, you will find that the happiest people of your acquaintance are not those who always make the sharpest bargains and who always expect to be taken in if they are not on the alert, but those who care more for their own self-respect, than for the kind of respectability riches buy.'

Henry Ward Beecher says of crows: 'Aside from the special question of profit and loss, we have a warm side toward the crow, he is so much like one of ourselves. He is lazy, that is human; he takes advantage of those weaker than himself, and that is manlike; he is sly, and hides for to-morrow what he cant eat to day, showing a real human providence, he learns tricks much faster than he does useful things, showing the true boy nature: he likes his own color best, and loves to hear his voice, which are eminent traits of humanity; he will never work when he can get another to work for him, a genuine human trait; he eats whatever he can get his claws upon and is less mischievous with his belly full than when hungry and that is like man; he is at war with all living beings except his own kind, and with them he has nothing to do No wonder, then, that men despise crows; they are too much like men. Take off his wings and put him in breeches, would make fair average men. Give men wings and reduce his smartness a little, and many of them would be good enough to be crows.

Roden, the rider and trainer is nicknamed 'Stone in the Bag' When a boy his father, who dwelt in Ireland, told him to ride to the mill with a grist which was placed in one end of the bag. A large stone was put in the other end to balance it. Roden having thrown the sack across the horse's back, and got the grist evenly divided had no need of the stone. He ran to his father and cried: 'Come, father and see! we don't need the stone any more.' The old gentleman looked calmly on, and said, 'Roden, your father, your grandfather, and your great grandfather, and all belonging to you, went to the mill with the stone in one end of the bag and the grist in the oth r; you put the stone in the bag.'

THE
PRICE, $3.50.

The American Washer saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no longer dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting. It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a quilt to a lace curtain or cambric handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the Little Gem! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once become fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this great labor saver is a fair trial We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly. Sole agents for the United States.

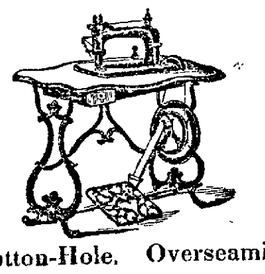
THE IMPROVED AMERICAN



Button-Hole, Overseaming,

—AND—

Complete Sewing Machine.

The first and only Button hole and Sewing machine combined that has made its advent in this or any other country.

Family Machine to Purchase

1. Because it will do everything that any machine can do, sewing from the finest to the coarsest material, hemming, felling, cording, braiding, binding, gathering and sewing on at the same time, ruffling, quilting, &c., better than any other machine.

2. Because the tensions are more easily adjusted than in any other machine.

3. Because it can make a beautiful button hole, making as fine a pearl as by hand.

4 Because it will embroider over the edge, making a neat and beautiful border on any garment.

5. Because it will make a beautiful eyelet hole

6. Because it can do overhand seaming, by which sheets, pillow cases, and the like are sewed over and over.

7. Because you can quickly raise or lower the feed to adapt it to thick or thin cloth.

8 Because you have a short deep bobbin by which the thread is constantly drawn from the center; the tension is consequently even and does not break the thread.

9. Because the presser foot turns back; that the cloth can be easily removed after being sewed

10. Because the best mechanics pronounce it the best finished and made on the best principle of any machine manufactured.

11. Because it has a better shuttle than any other machine.

12. Because it runs easier and quieter than any other heavy machine.

13. Because it is two machines in one—a button hole working and sewing machine combined.

It is to last a lifetime, and therefore one is wanted that will do the most work, and do it the best, and this machine can do several kinds of sewing not done on any other machine, besides doing every kind that all others can do.

The American or Plain Sewing Machine

Is a beautiful family and light manufacturing machine, possessing all the superior qualities of the combined machine, except making button holes and overseaming. In all other respects the principal of construction is the same.

These Machines are Warranted.
